DETAILED ACTION

The indicated allowability of claims 1-6 and 9-12 is withdrawn in view of the references to Denz et al and Bidner et al. Rejections based on the references follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 5 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bidner et al (5,617,829). Bidner et al discloses determining the duration of a clean period timer to enable reactivation of a cylinder which was deactivated during a variable displacement operation in column 4, lines 40-58. The duration is disclosed to be a predetermined number of crankshaft revolutions, which is equivalent to engine cycles, which are considered engine events.

Claims 1-4, 9 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Denz et al (5,839,409). In column 1, line 51, through column 2, line 42, Denz et al discloses determining a cylinder reactivation additional fuel quantity duration after fuel cut for vehicle deceleration. Regarding claims 9 and 10, during deceleration, requested torque is zero or negative with the vehicle speed above zero.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3747

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Denz et al (5,839,409) in view of Hasegawa et al. Denz et al does not disclose how vehicle deceleration or coasting is determined. Hasegawa et al teaches detection of deceleration using rate of change of vehicle speed in column 10, lines 1-6. It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use rate of change of vehicle speed to determine deceleration of the vehicle in the system of Denz et al, since it is a method known in the art as evidenced by Hasegawa et al.

Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Denz et al (5,839,409) in view of Gonzales, Jr. et al (5,337,715). Denz et al does not disclose deactivation and reactivation of all cylinders together. Gonzales, Jr. et al teaches deactivating all cylinders during deceleration or coasting. It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Denz et al to shut off fuel to all cylinders during a deceleration event, as taught by Gonzales, Jr. et al, to further improve fuel economy and emissions.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 7 and 8 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 13-20 are allowed.
